

Congressman Pence is covered throughout the district media for his comments regarding the possibility of bailing out the "Big 3" from the auto industry:

First, in a front page story in today's Columbus Republic, Congressman Pence is quoted as saying

*"It seems to me to be no better way to help families stay in their homes, no better way to help small businesses hire new people, there'd be no better way to encourage Americans to go out and buy cars. You'd leave more in their paychecks and pockets,"*and WISH TV also has a story today:

Pence said his priorities are the taxpayer first and the autoworkers second. He also said that Congress should consider a tax holiday as a way of giving money back to taxpayers before spending $350 billion in financial bailout money already approved. Congressman Pence has also been getting media attention for his public support for Congressman Louie Gohmert's tax holiday plan:

WTHR writes that

Pence says giving taxpayers the power to stimulate the economy "combined with fiscal discipline and expanding trade is the real long term antidote for what ails the economy." WCSI also has a story on it

HERE

.